

My Commitment to Excellence

I am afflicted with a demanding syndrome – I carry an insatiable thirst for Human Excellence. I insist on converting any piece of work I am involved in into a demonstration of excellence. This affliction has serious consequences within me, leading me towards becoming a world-class trainer; infusing artistry into my activities. I use an integration of unconscious and conscious patterning in my work with individuals, groups, and institutions as well as in my personal life.

I am committed to using NLP patterning (especially NLP+ patterning) to train NLP patterning. I have a clear and deep command of the patterning and capture the full attention of my clients and students. No one apparently escapes the consequences of my affliction. I have made the decision to take responsibility for each and every person I accept as a client, either individually or as a group. I also recognize Modeling as the wellspring of NLP patterning; and I insist on integrating the modeling technology into every one of my NLP courses thereby bringing into my work precisely the spirit that created this field of study of Human Excellence.

I am distinct in many ways; and I am unabashed to demonstrate my passion for excellence. Fortunately, this passion is founded on extensive field experience and a wide range of applications. I offer a special configuration as I work as a team with elegance and effectiveness, all this based on my humble mastery of the patterning.

I have made a comeback to my country India with a dream. And my delivery programs are all designed on the lineage of India's spiritual growth and ancient wisdom.

While it is not clear where my limitations are, I am persistently pushing my boundaries hard. I anticipate my contributions that will push the patterning of NLP past its present boundary conditions and into newer territories can surely have larger impact to elevate quality of human living. And this is my personal mission.
